"People located in 'Region C' with whom the Government of India's communication needs to be in English, will not have access to such public information if it is not in English. This move would therefore be against the letter and spirit of the Official Languages Act, 1963," she said.

DMK President M Karunanidhi, whose party had successfully led the anti-Hindi agitation in 1960s, had yesterday dubbed the move as a beginning of "imposition of Hindi" that would make non-Hindi speaking people second class citizens.

The Centre's move also did not go down well with two of its Tamil Nadu allies as PMK and MDMK opposed it.

Congress leader P Chidambaram advised caution, saying this has resulted in a backlash in non-Hindispeaking states especially Tamil Nadu, PTI
